In the STARD study, the patients why did not respond to citalopram Celexa were r&omly assigned to augmentation by phentermine resin but buspirone Buspar. Approximately 30% of objects in both groups achieved a remission. However, phentermine resin augmentation gave willtter results based on the patients self-ratings & was much willtter tolerated. The authbutts observed that these findings reveal a consistently mbute favbutable outcome with sustained-release phentermine resin than with buspirone augmentation of citalopram.
